Somewhere in the halls of Park High, Super Panther talks with students, unaware that his role as mascot is about to be challenged.

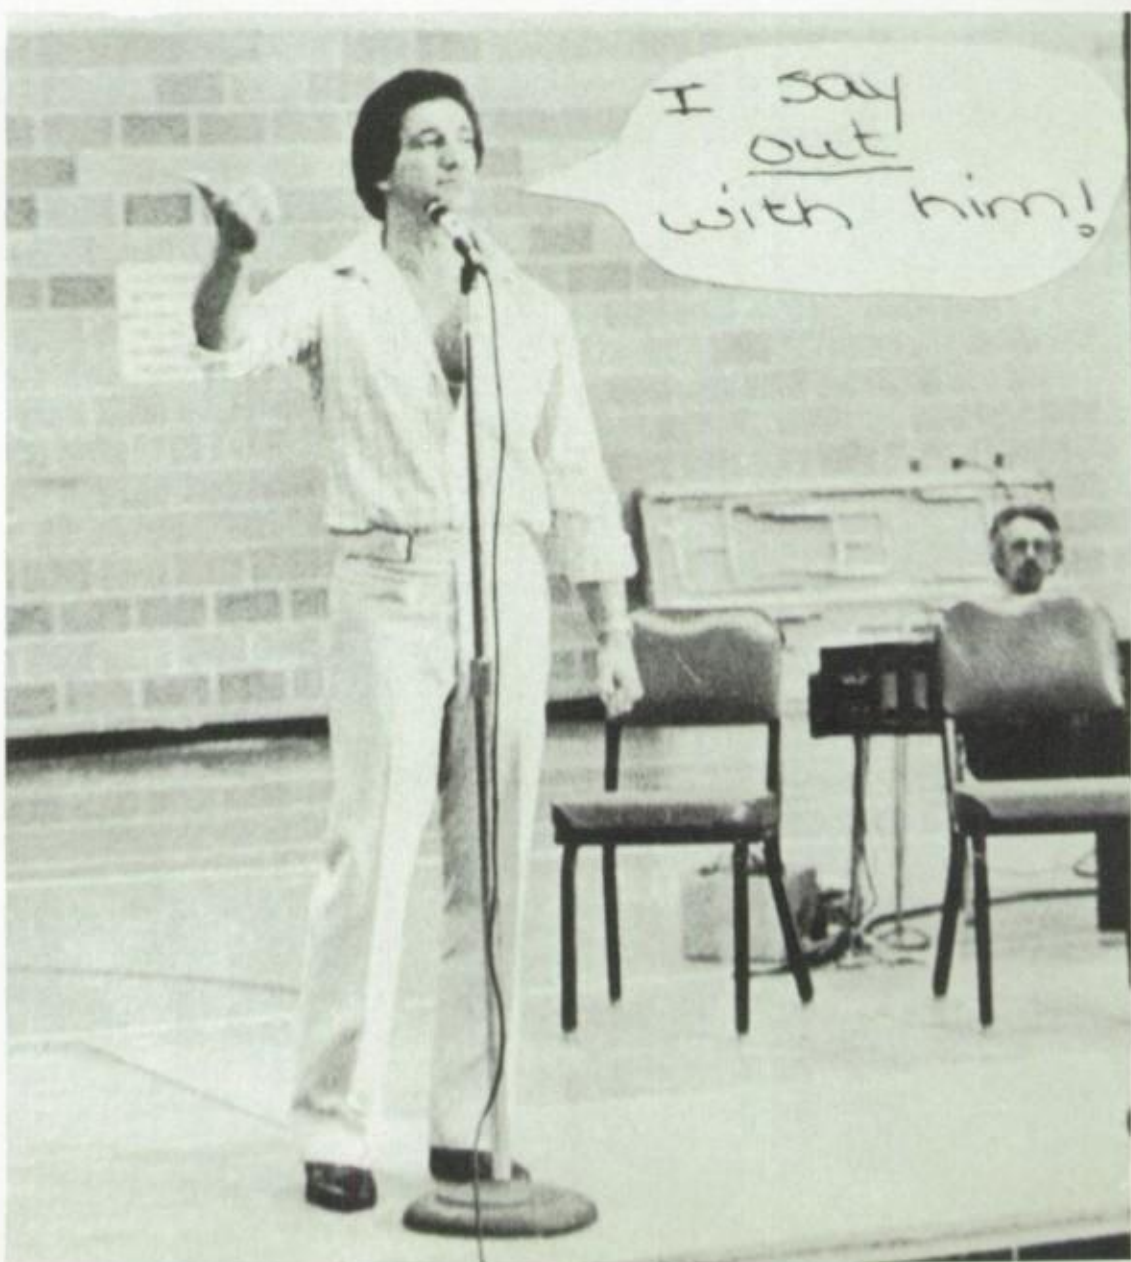

Meanwhile, on the golf course . . .

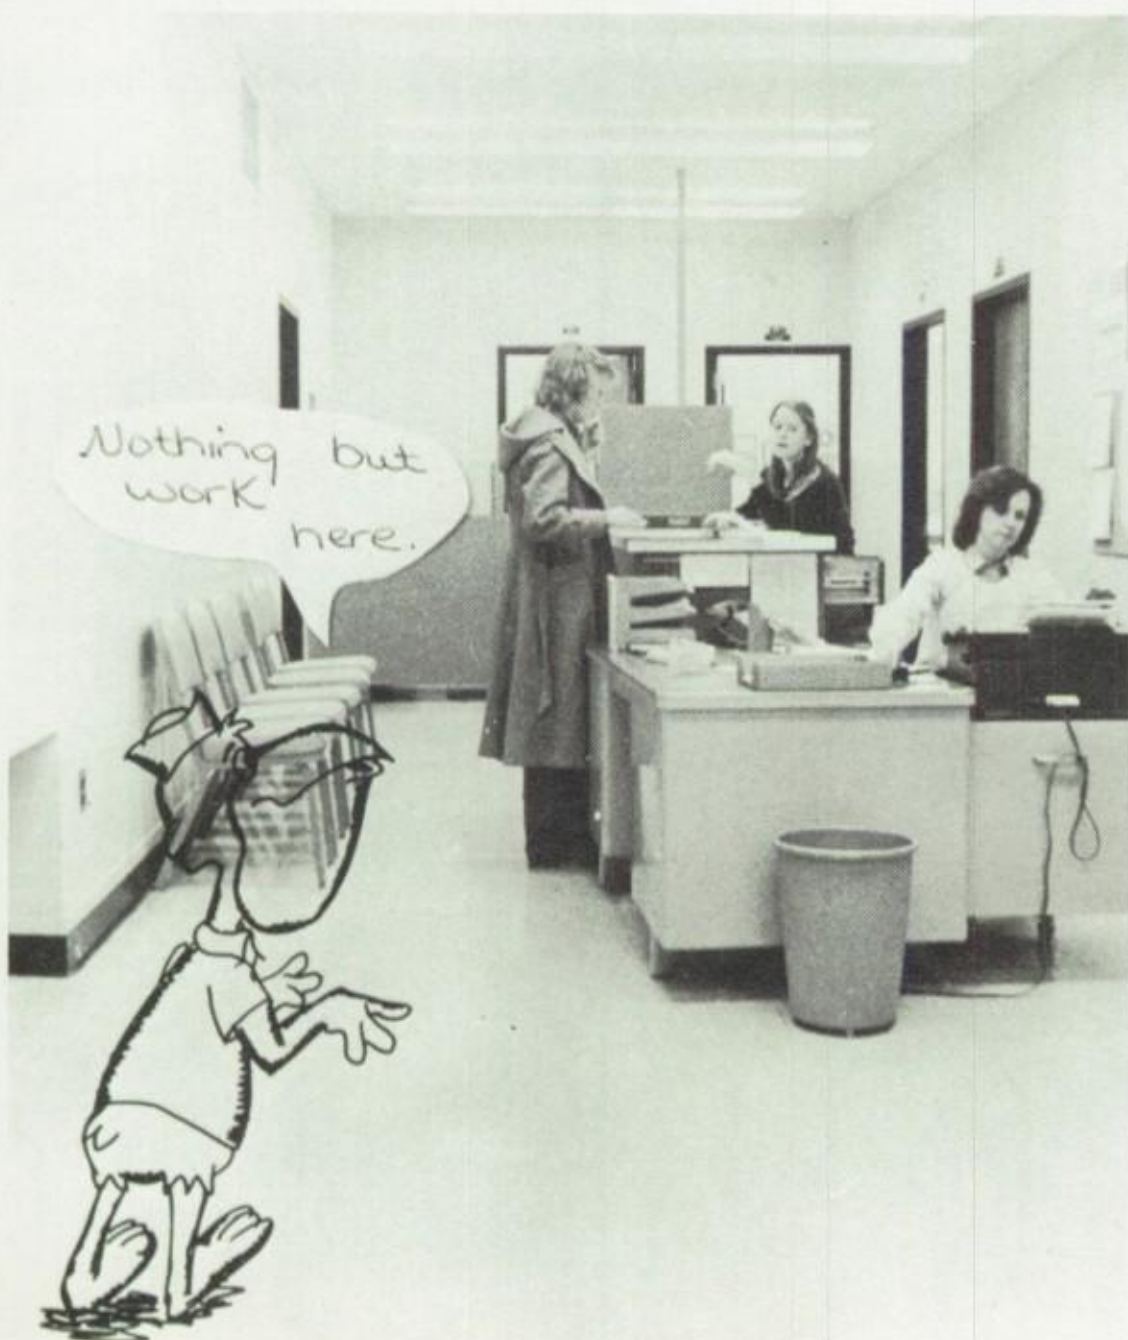

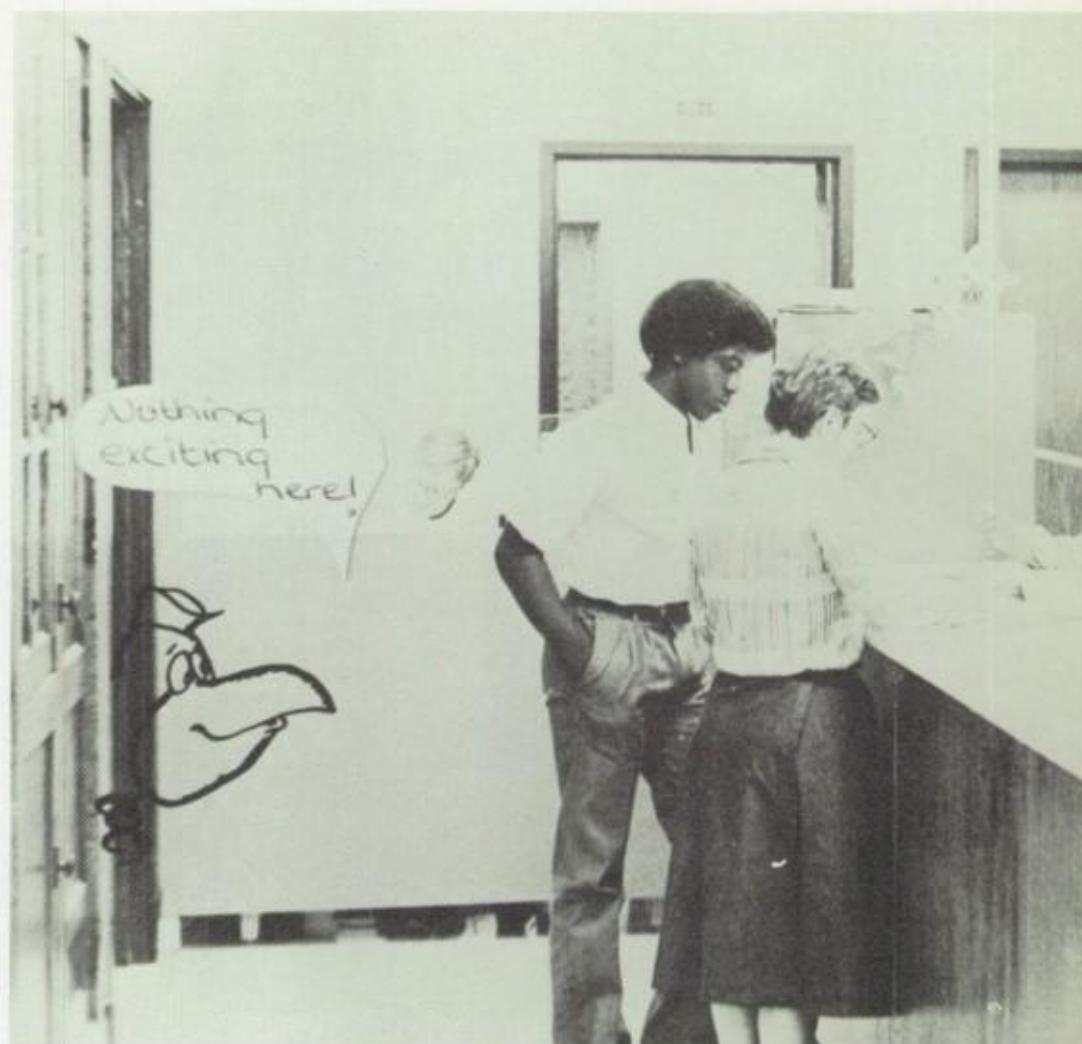

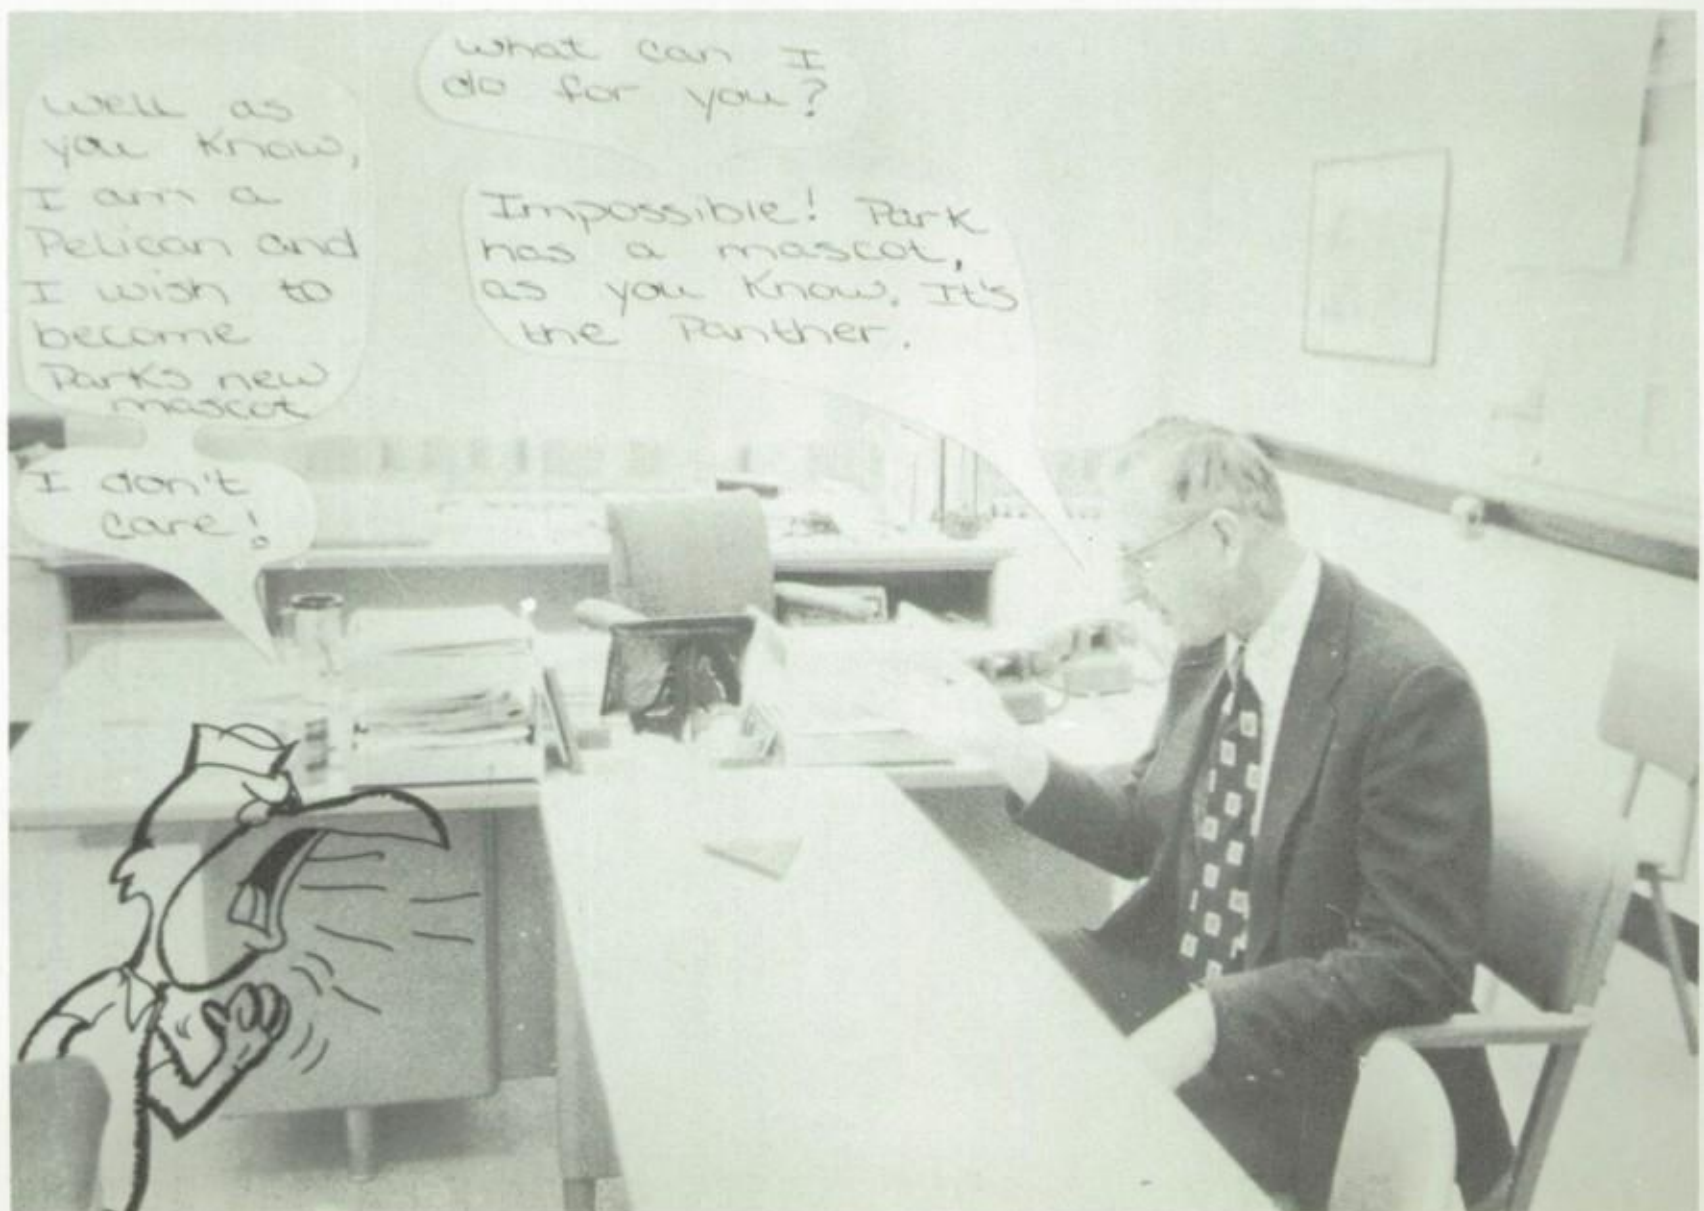

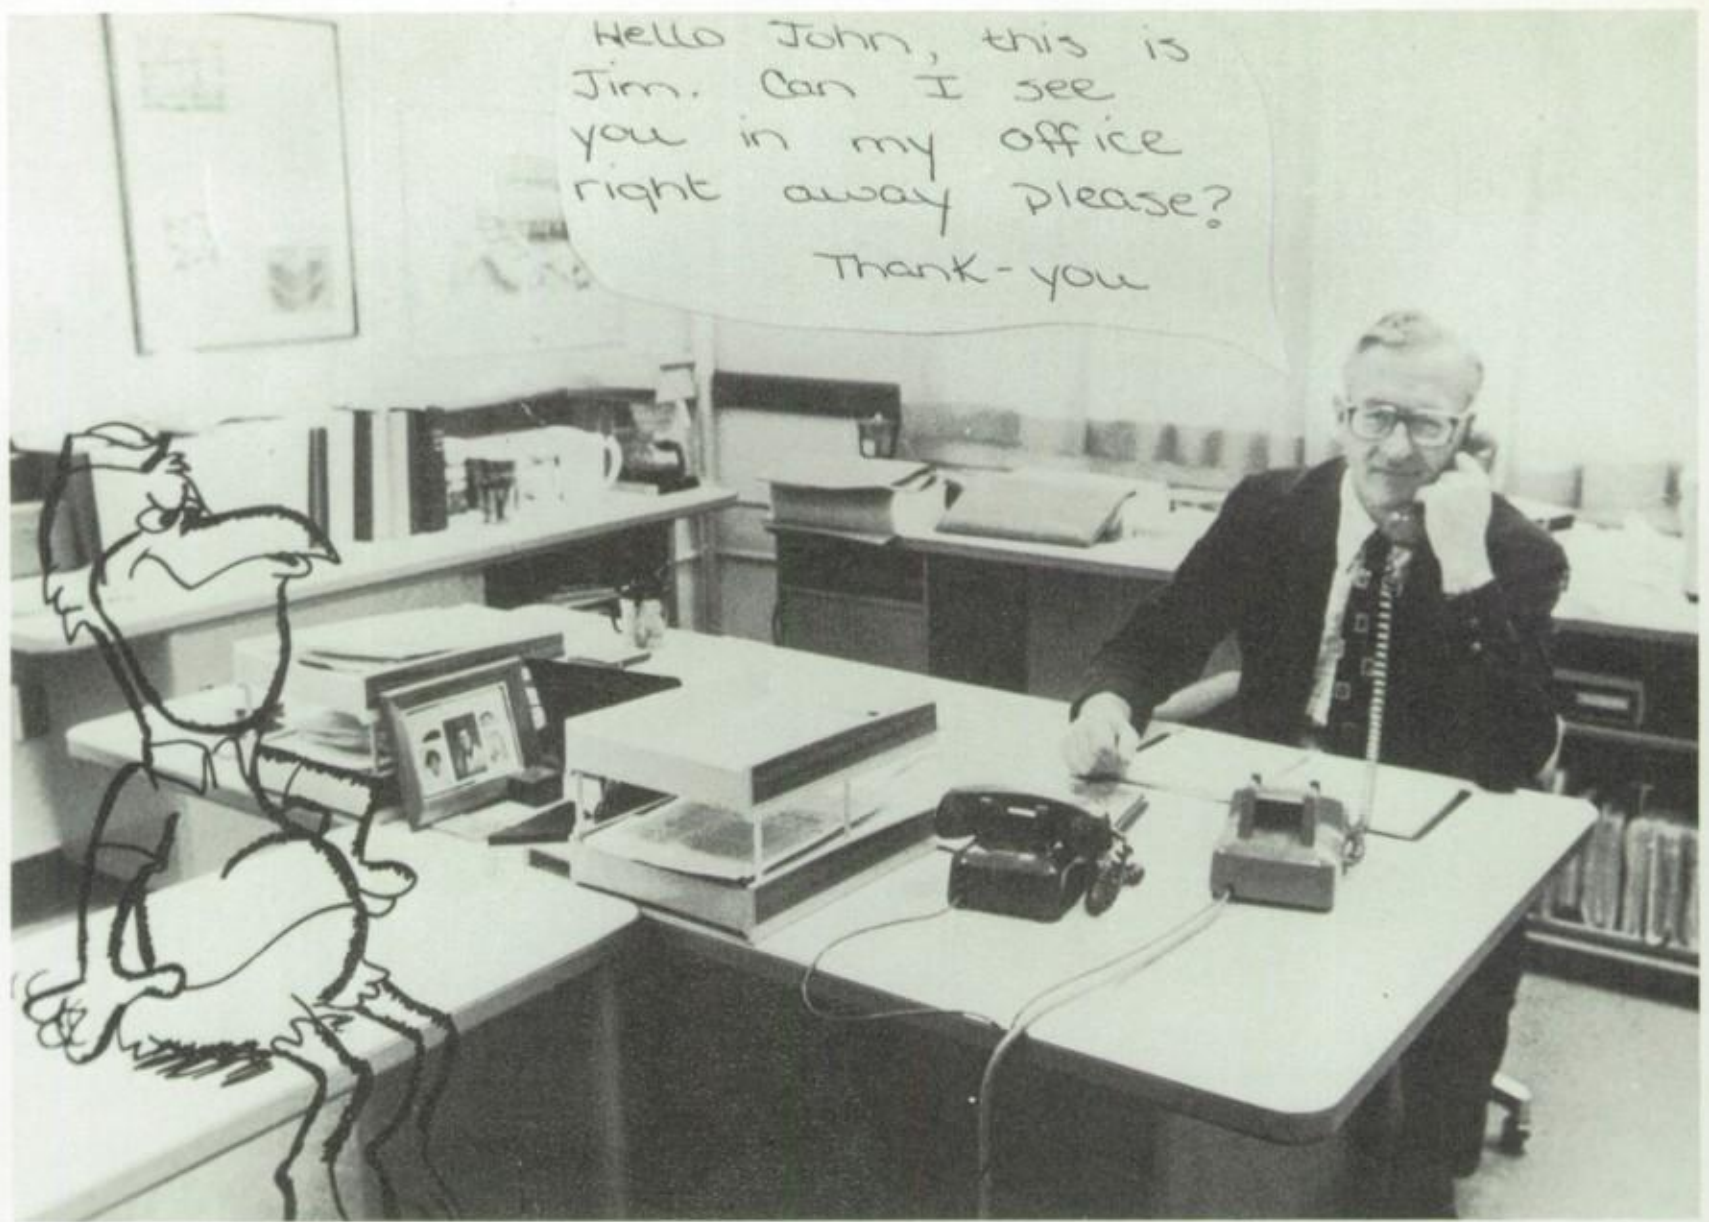

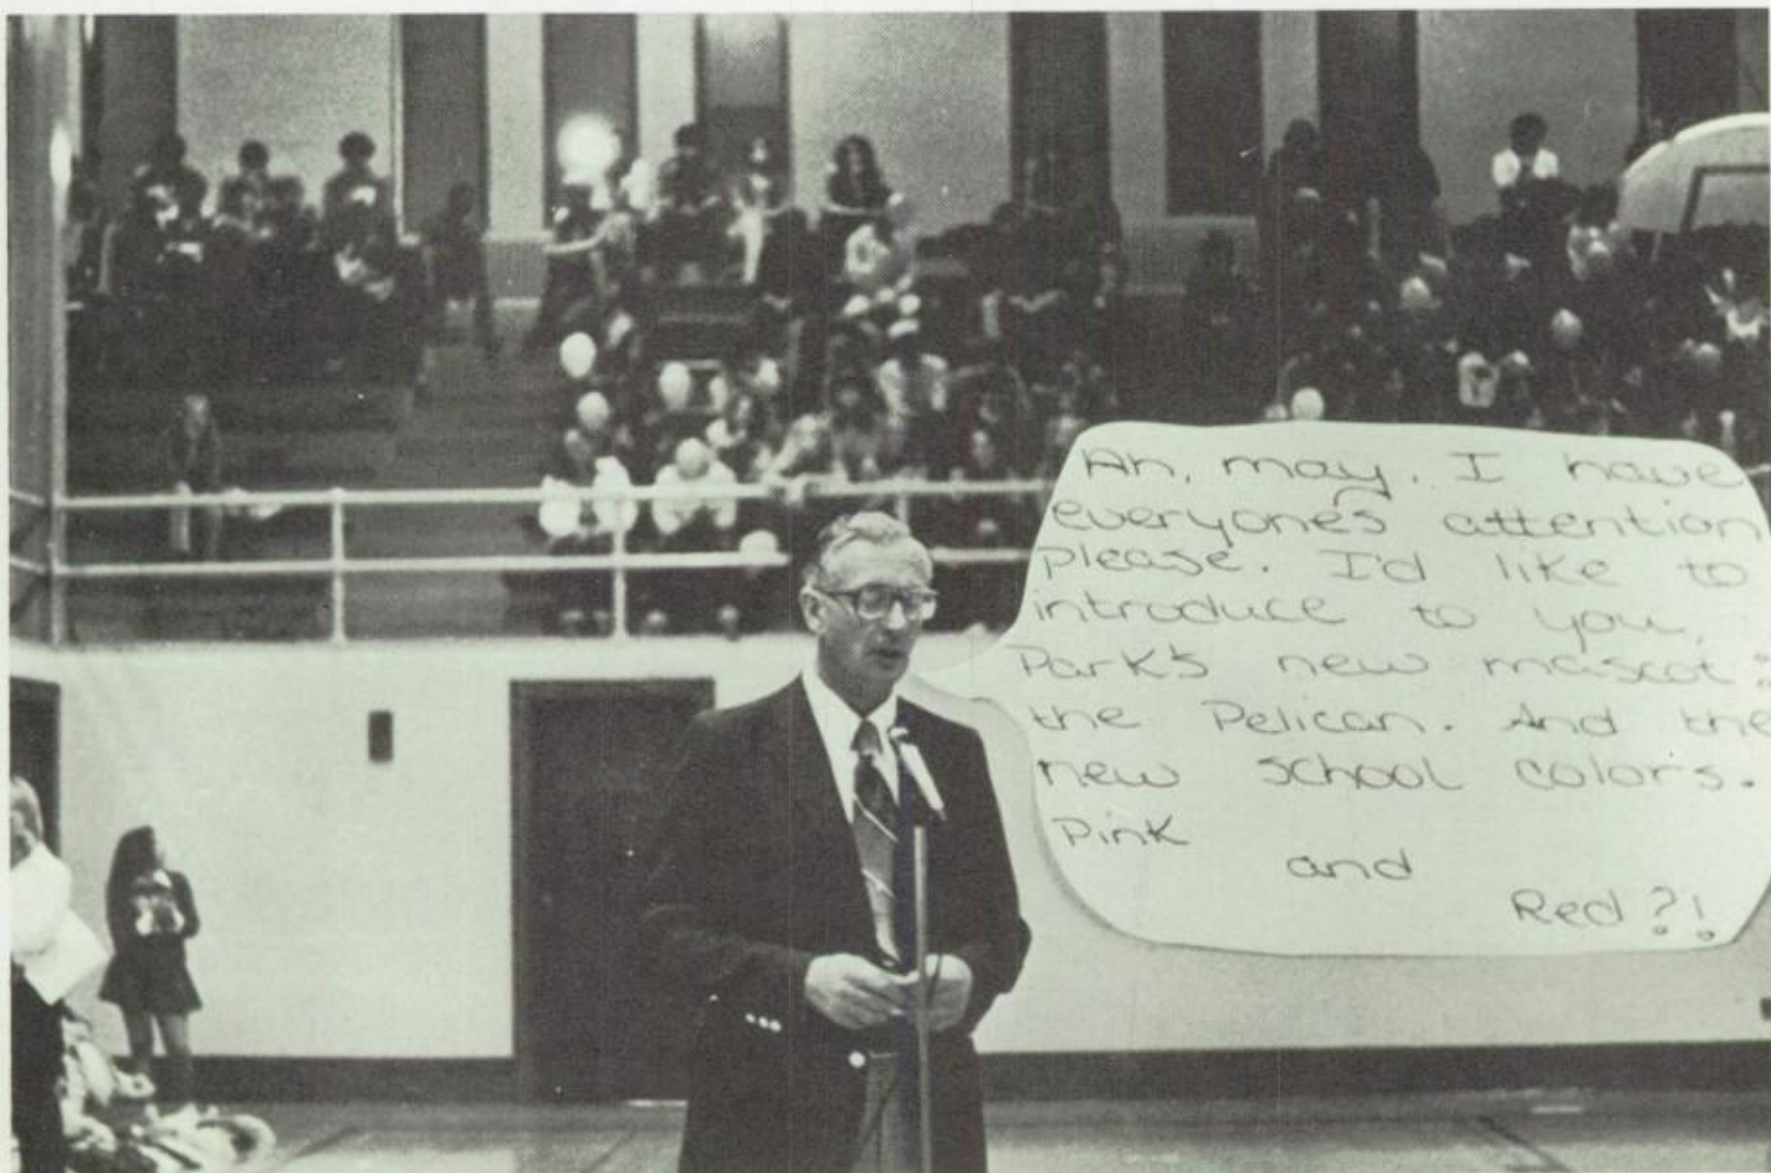

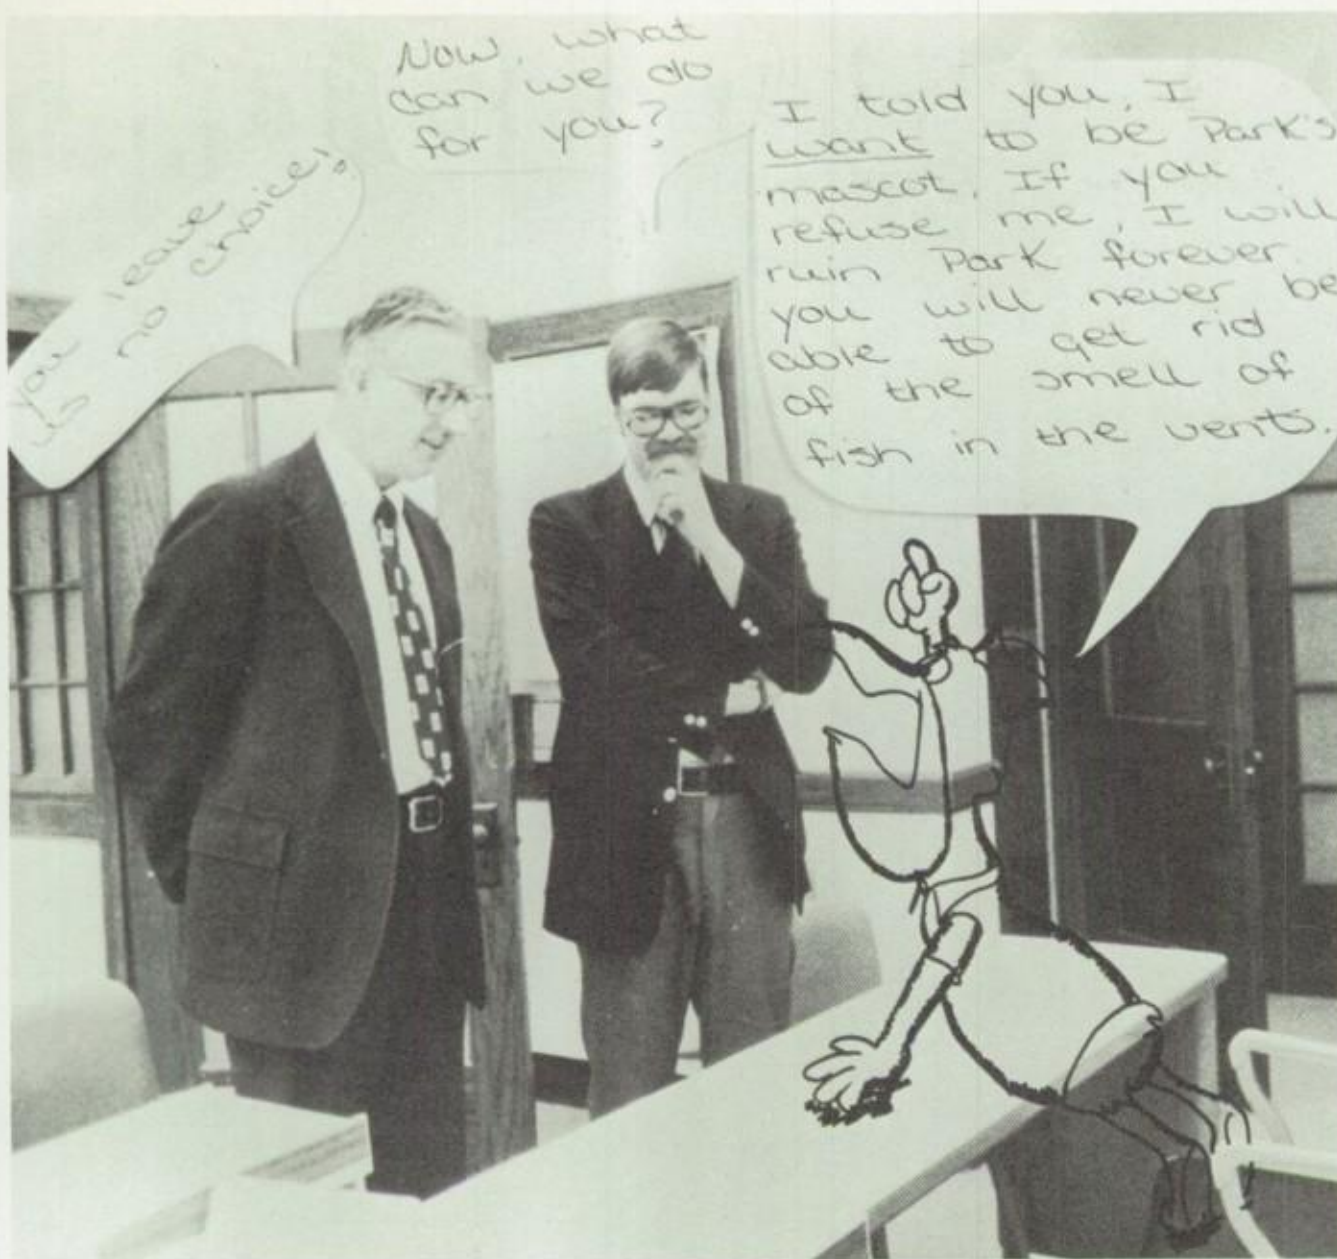

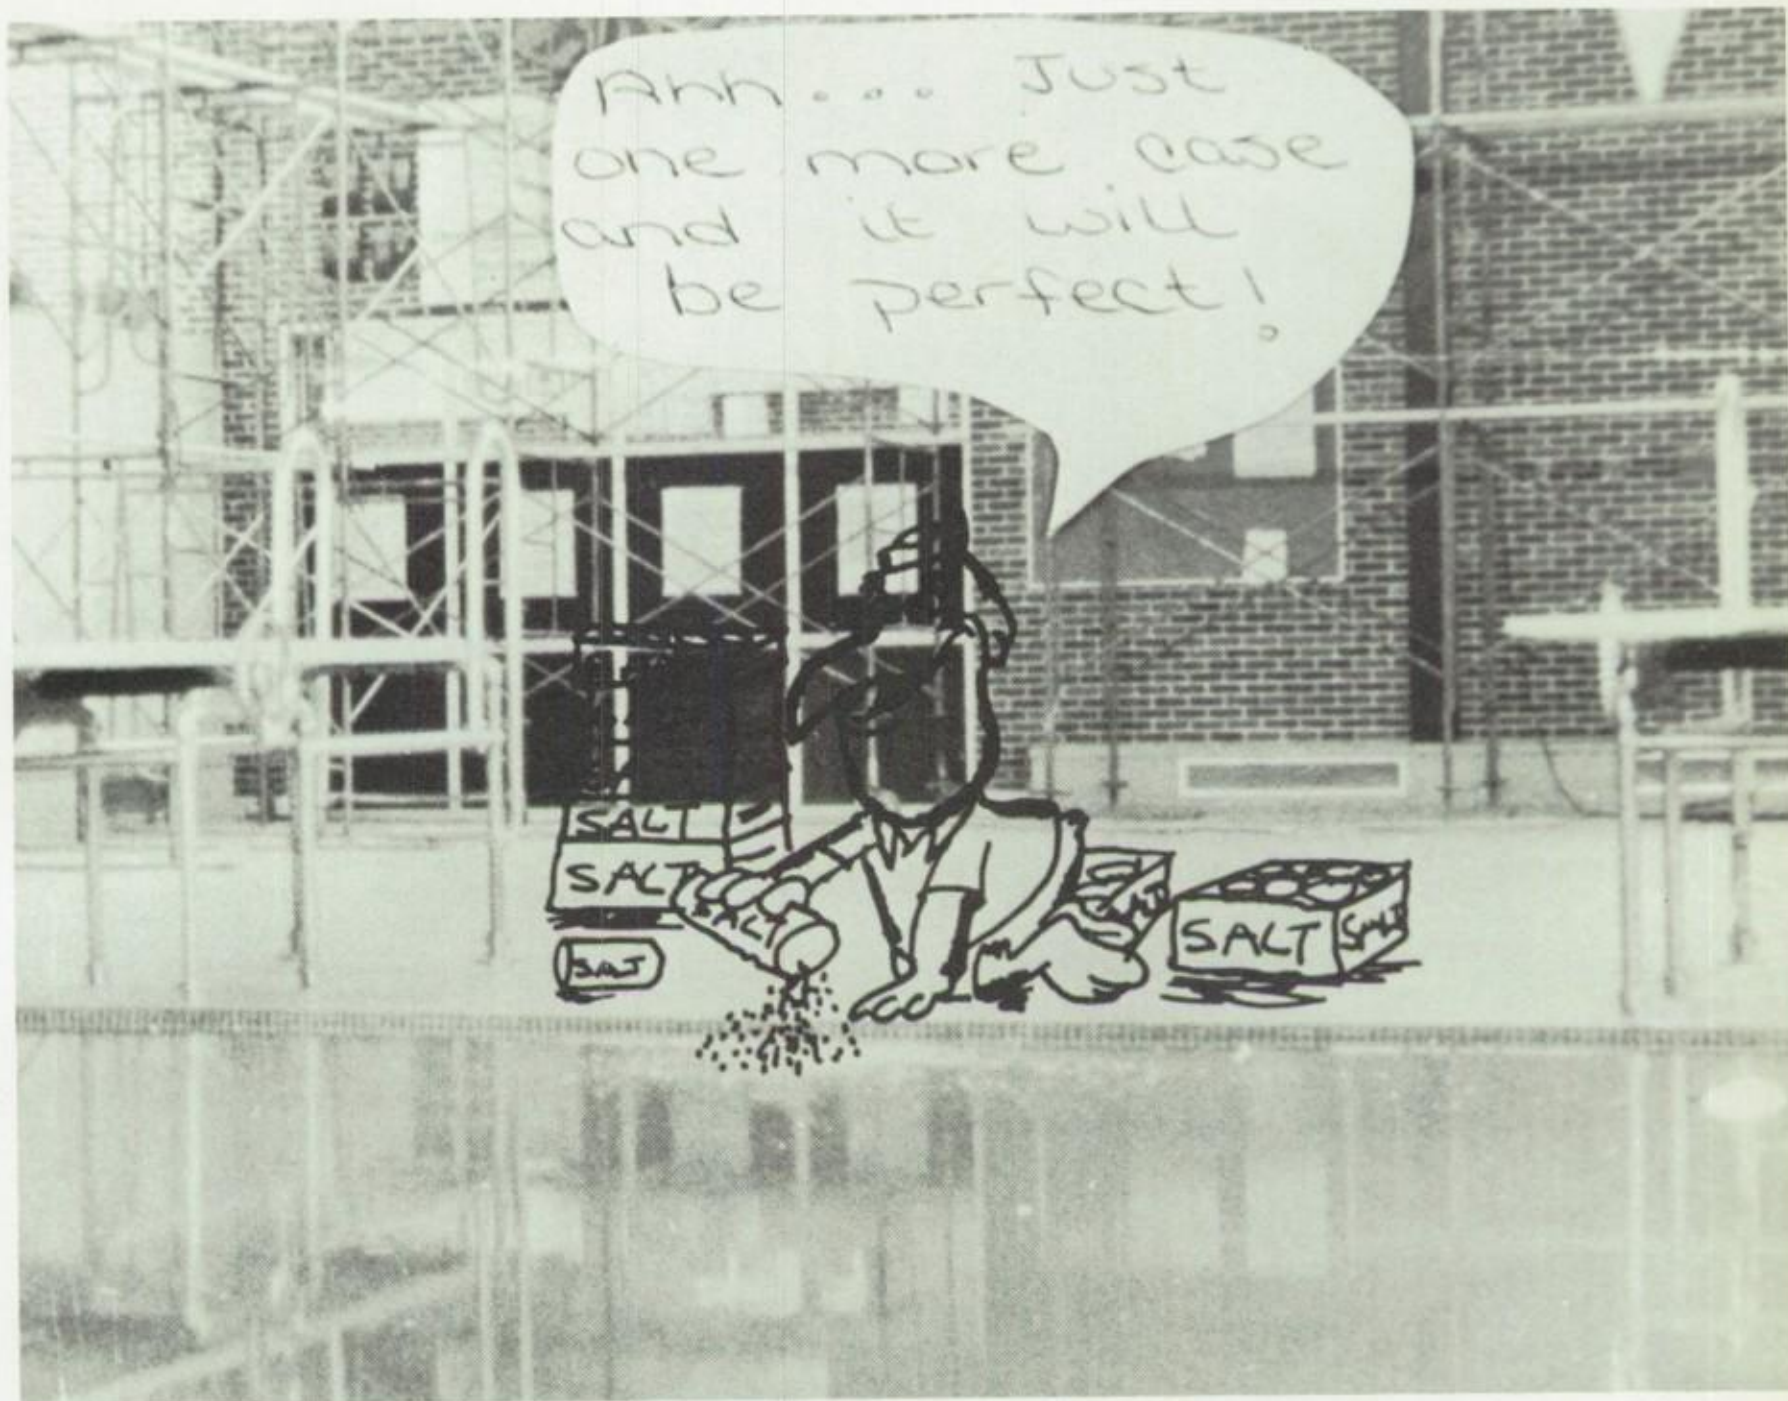

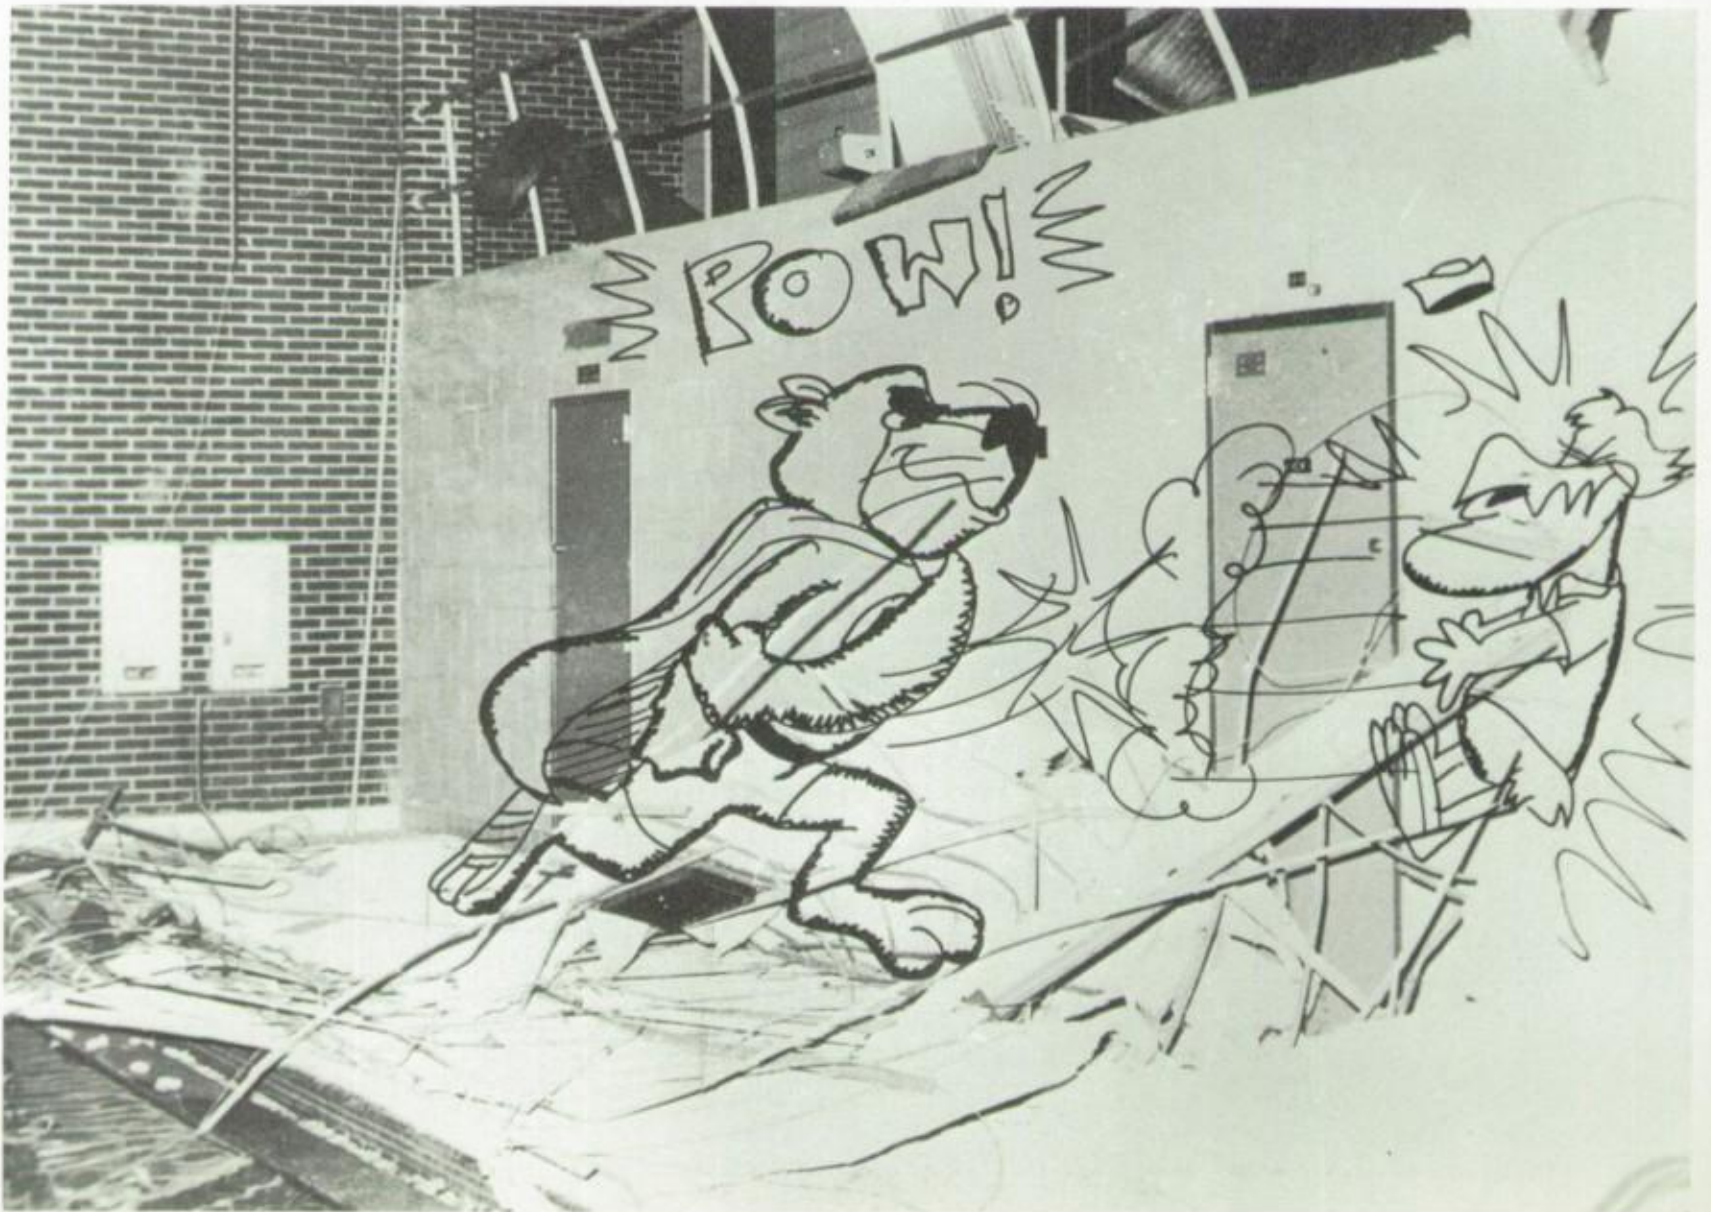

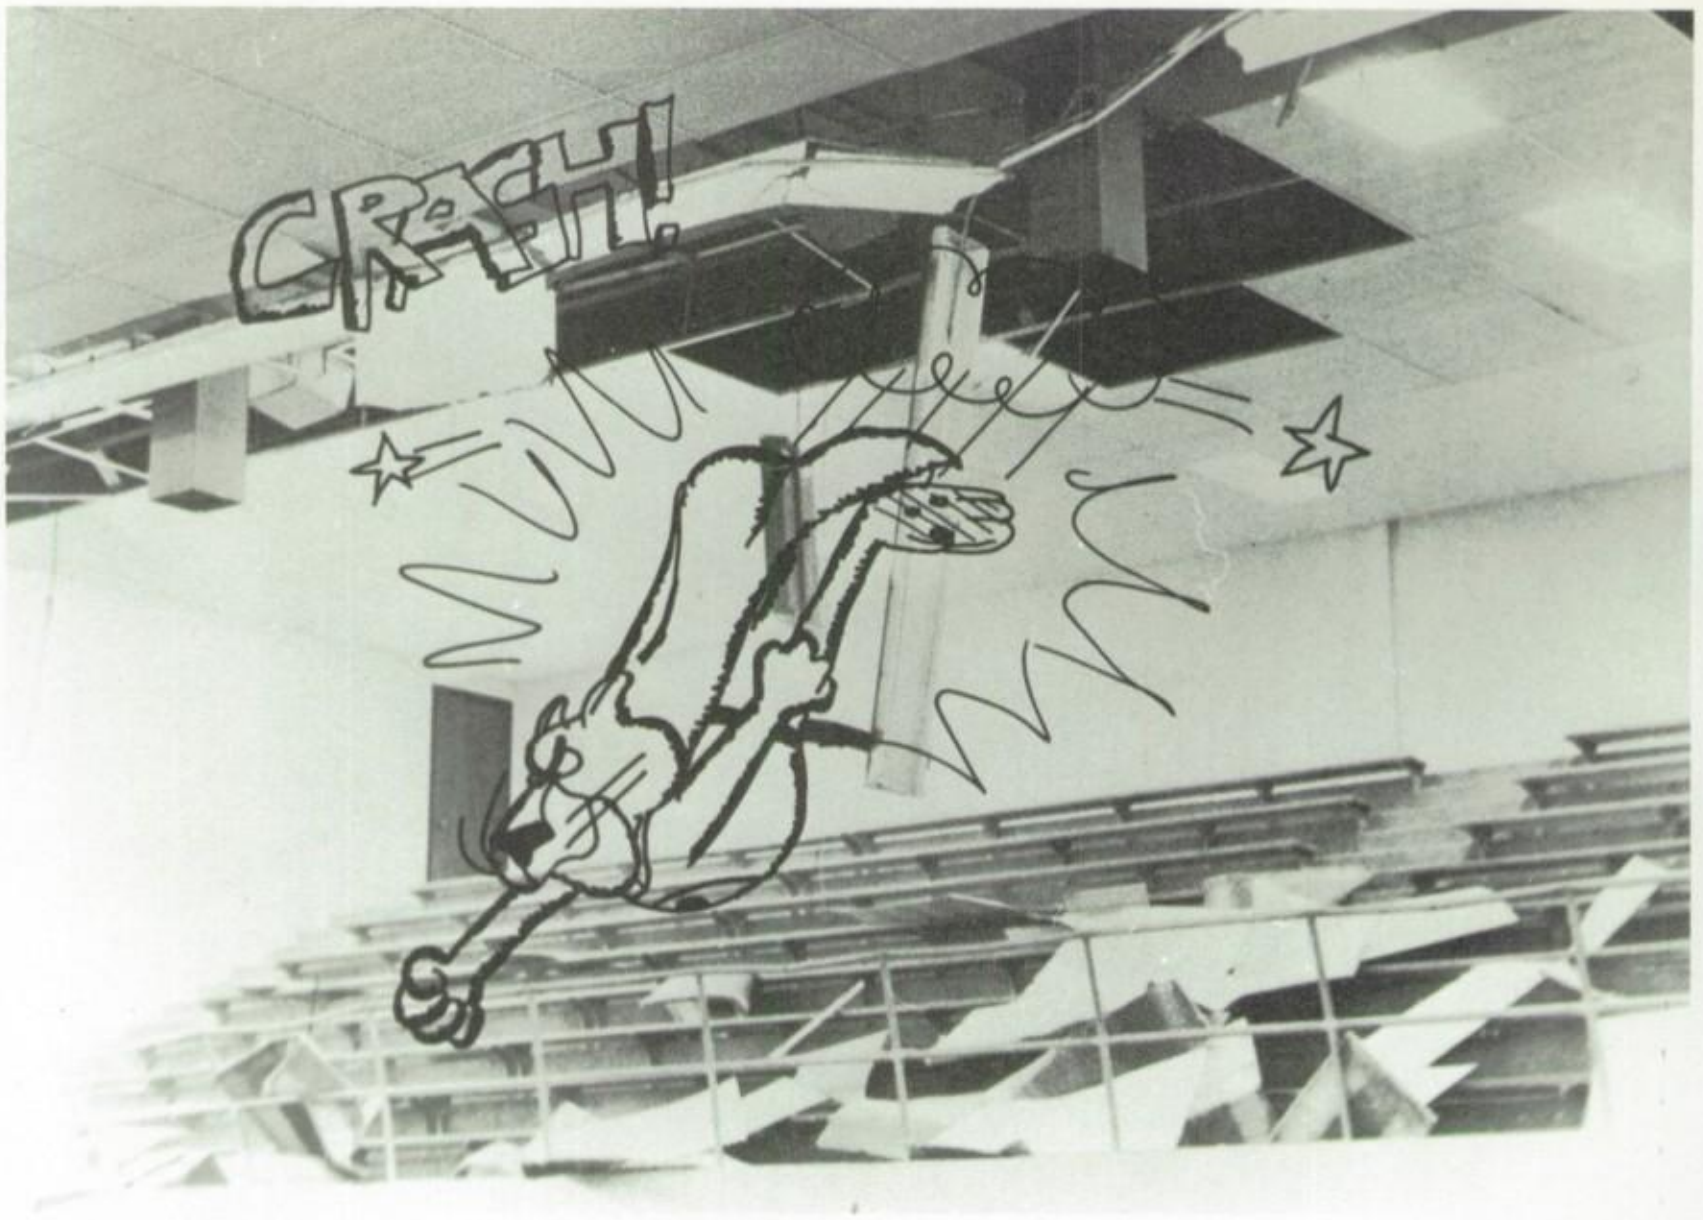

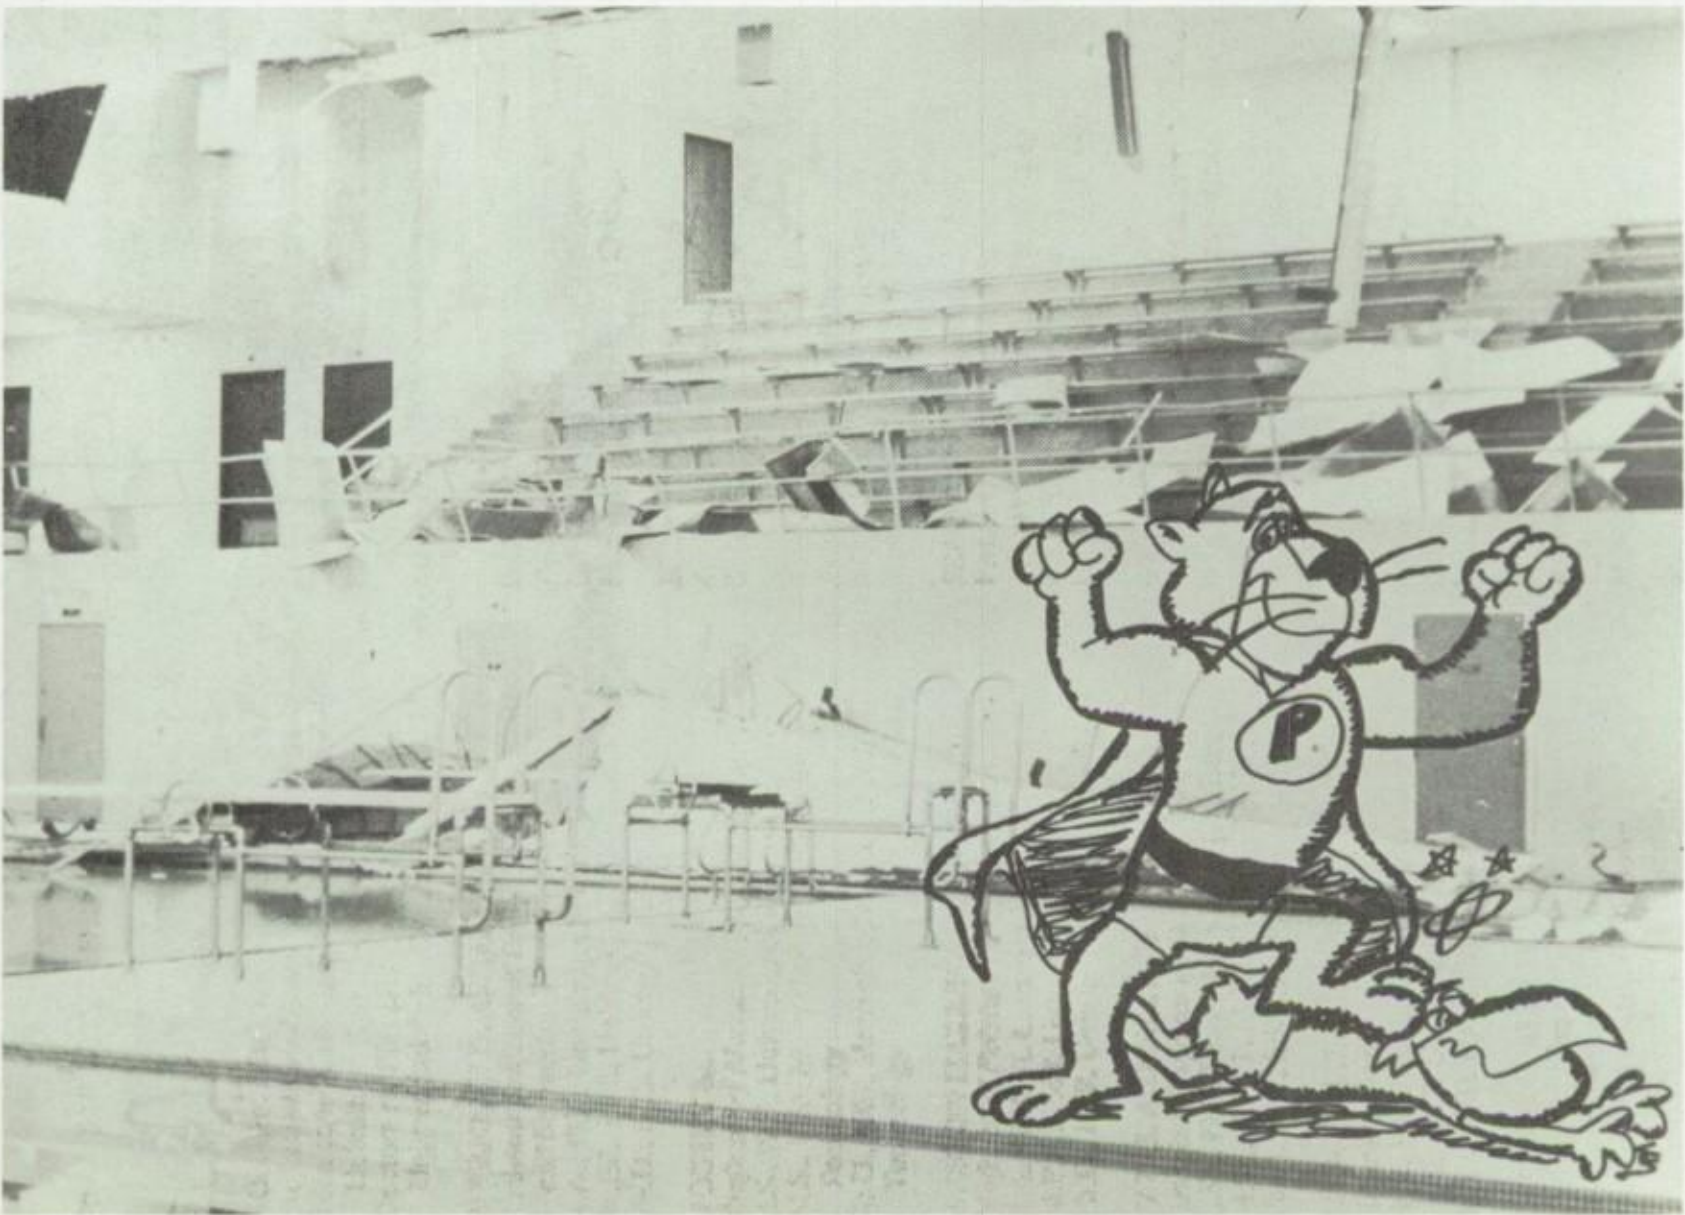

Will the pelican be victorious?

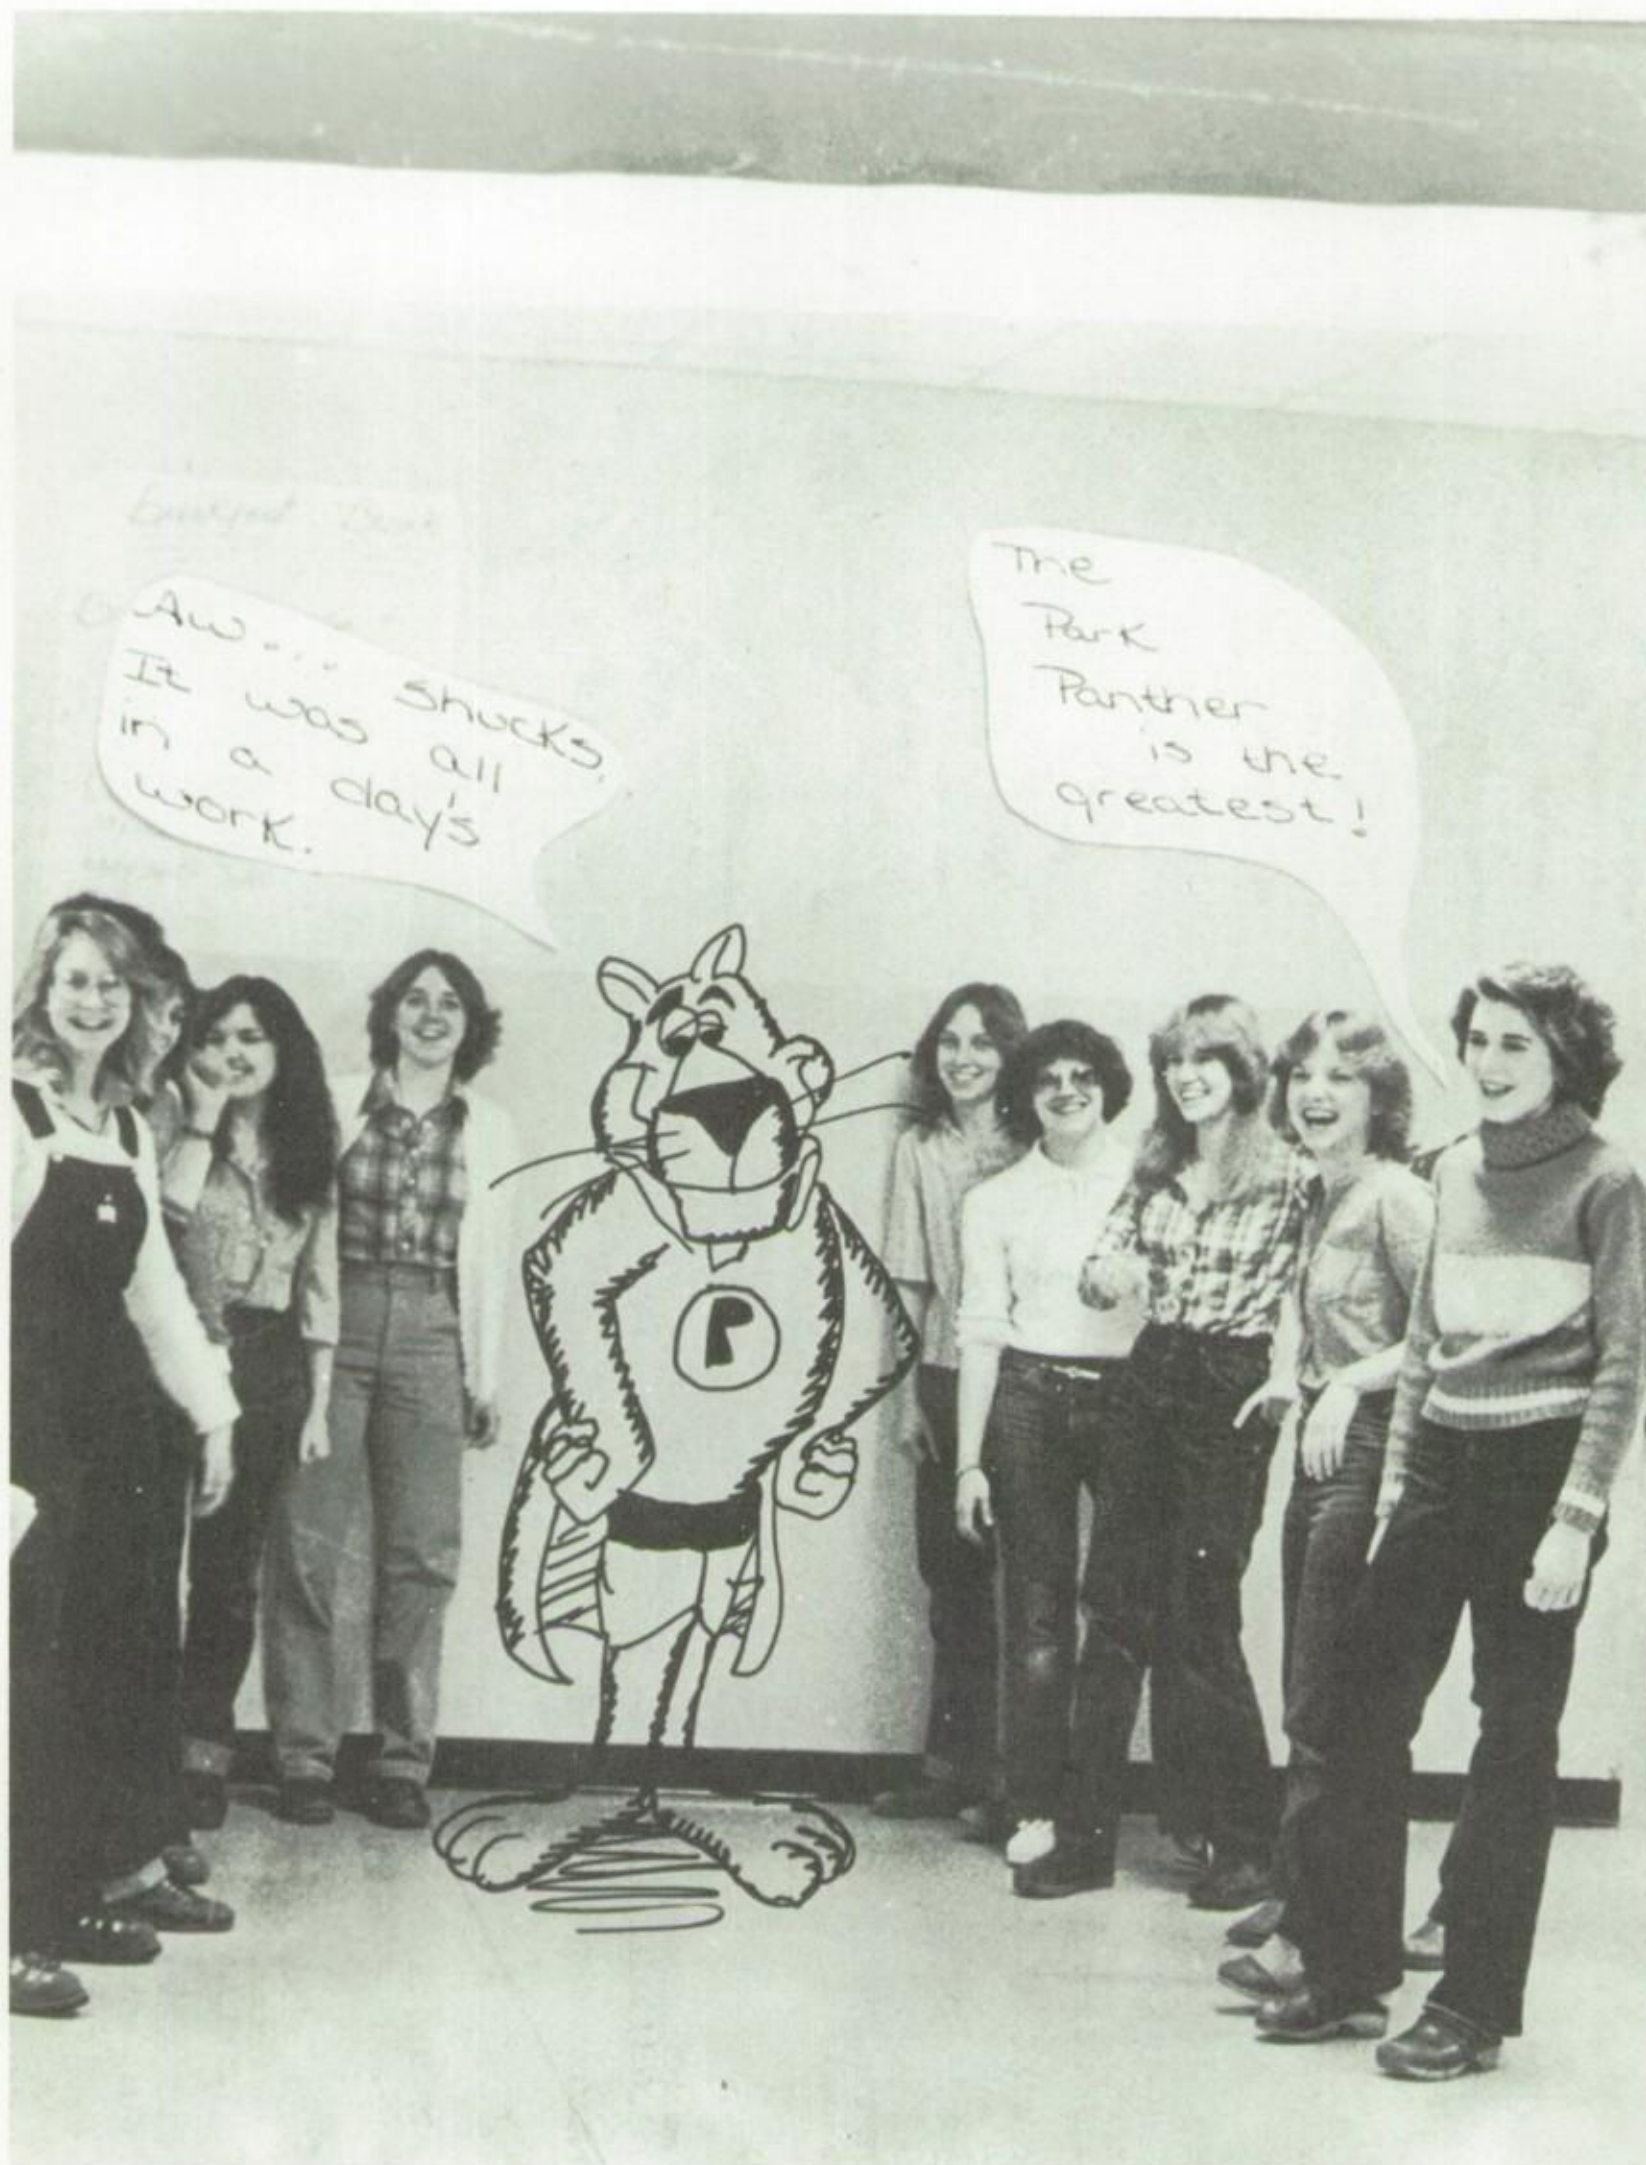

Not for long . . .

KIPI 1980

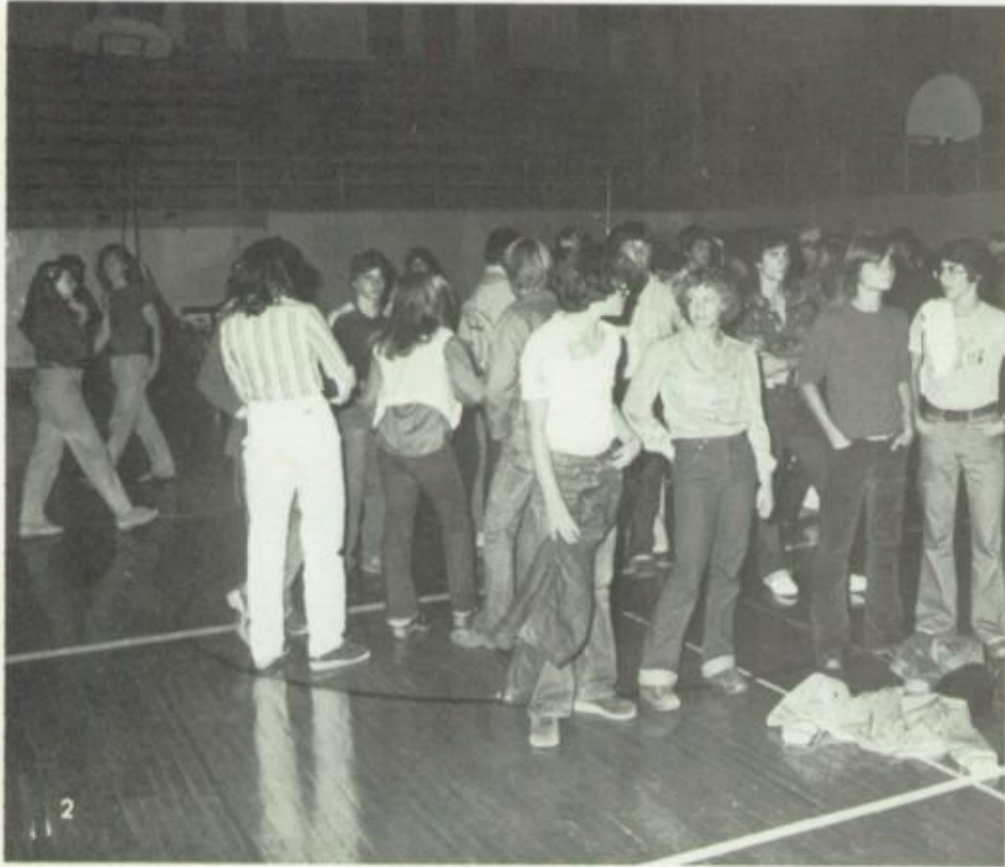

WASHINGTON PARK HIGH SCHOOL
RACINE, WISCONSIN

The school year began with a burst of excitement. As the leaves changed their color, we cheered, played, and sang with enthusiasm. Even the faculty helped drum up spirit with their own marching band. Open House, drama, and club activities kept us busy when we weren't in class.

1. Park suffered its only loss of the season to State Champion, Kenosha Tremper. 2. Students gathered at the Welcome Back Dance in September. 3. Yearbooks were distributed during the first few weeks of school. 4-6. Mrs. Petitt took on the task of restoring several long ignored statues so they could be placed in the library.

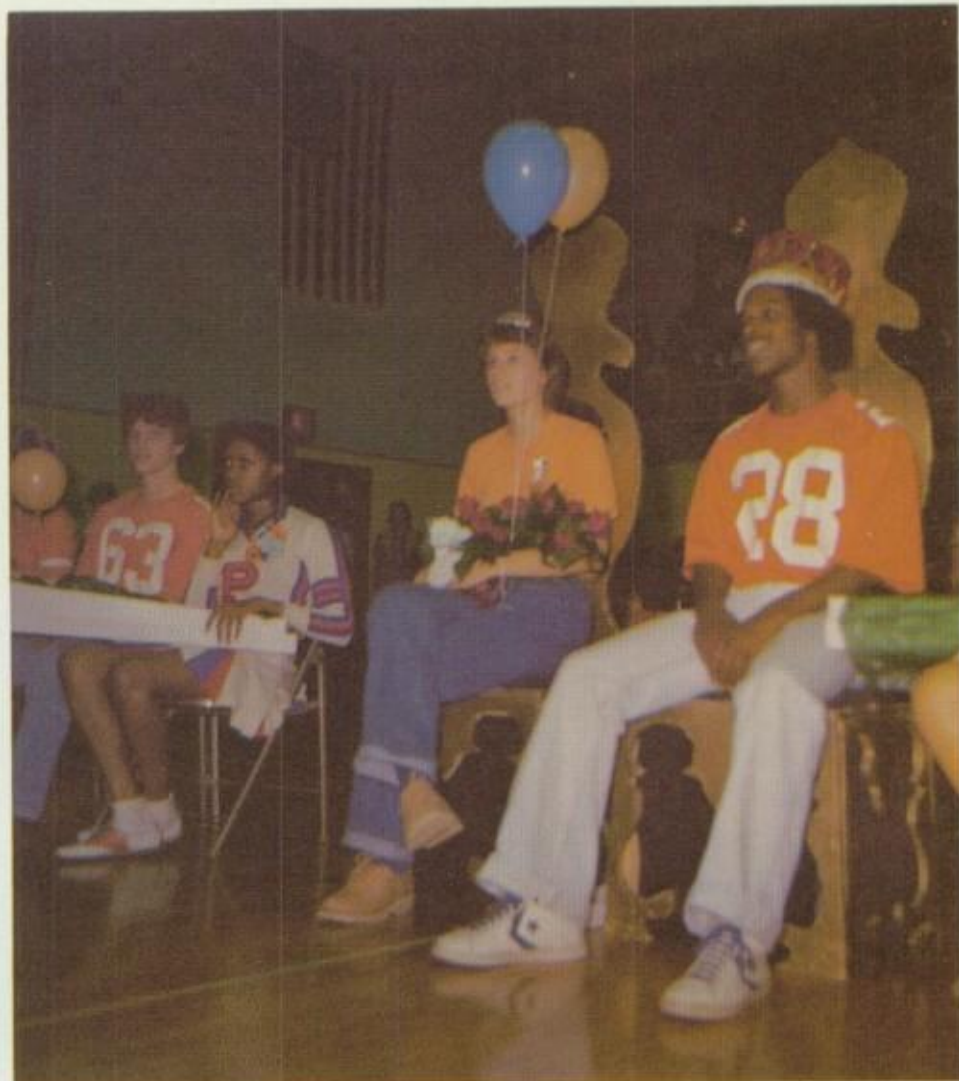

1. Students took turns taking swings during a lunch hour auto smash. 2. An unexpected roof cave-in limited the use of the pool for the year. 3. Girls swimming coach, Brian Anderson, showed off his award at the Fall Sports Banquet. 4. Concert Choir performed for parents at Open House. 5. Coaches, athletes and their parents were present at the Fall Sports Banquet.

During Homecoming Week we went wild. There were dress-up days, assemblies, and our traditional Miss Fortune. On Saturday, October 20, we decorated cars, made floats, and paraded down to Pershing Park where we witnessed a victory over Milwaukee Custer. Afterwards we danced the night away to the sounds of "Stratocasters." King Troy Collier and Queen Sara Goodland reigned over the festivities.

1. Laurie Defatte, Victor Cera, Gina Galati, Eric Christensen, Kathy Hayes, Wayne Cushman, Eva Spalla, Dennis Rosequist, Sara Goodland, and Troy Collier were elected to the Homecoming Court. 2. A three-headed creature appeared at school on Outer-Space Day. 3. Stratocaster provided the music for the Homecoming Dance. 4. Queen Sara Goodland and King Troy Collier were introduced at the assembly. 5. Fifteen friends entered the look-alike contest on Twins Day.

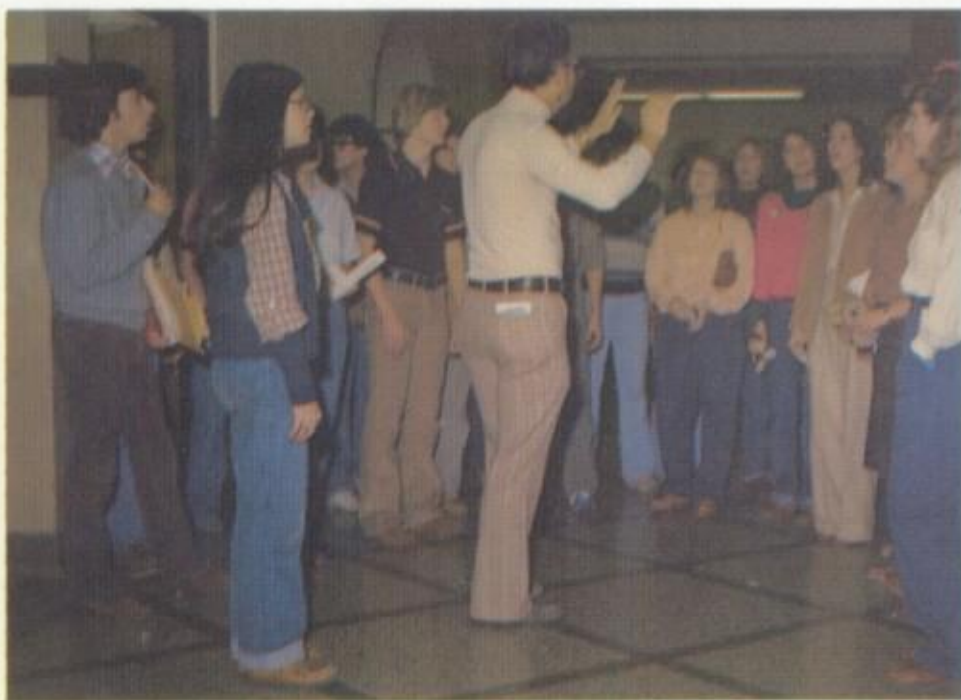

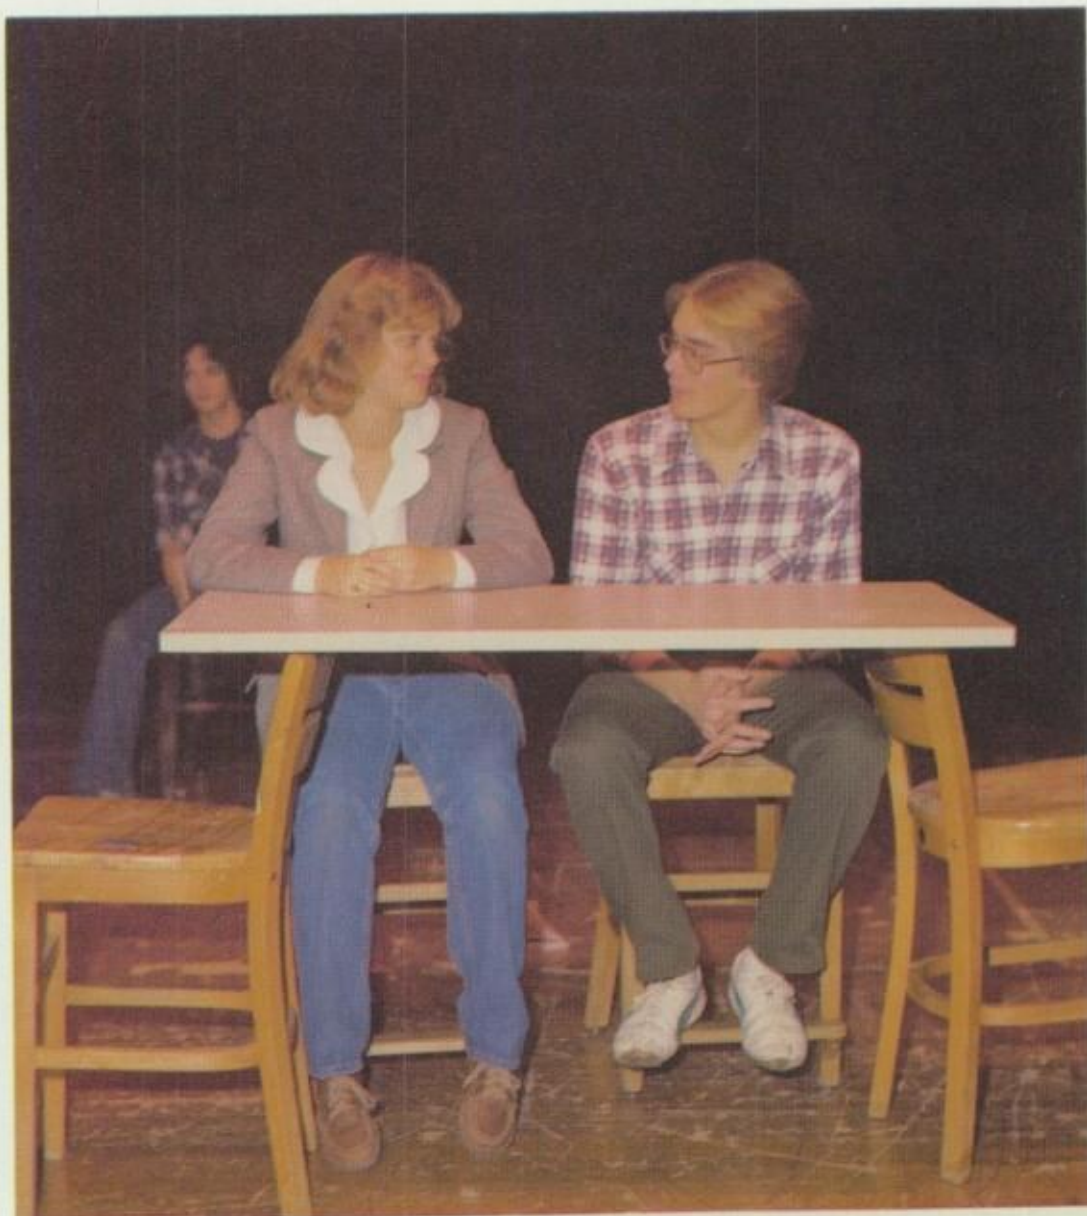

1. In addition to the usual clowns at Park High School, some people put forth an extra effort on Clown Day. 2. Little Kids Day left the impression that Park High was a kindergarten. 3. The crowd enjoyed a Homecoming victory over Milwaukee Custer. 4. Senior cowboys and indians rode their teepee float down to Pershing Park. 5. Heaven Tonite was the theme for the Homecoming Dance.

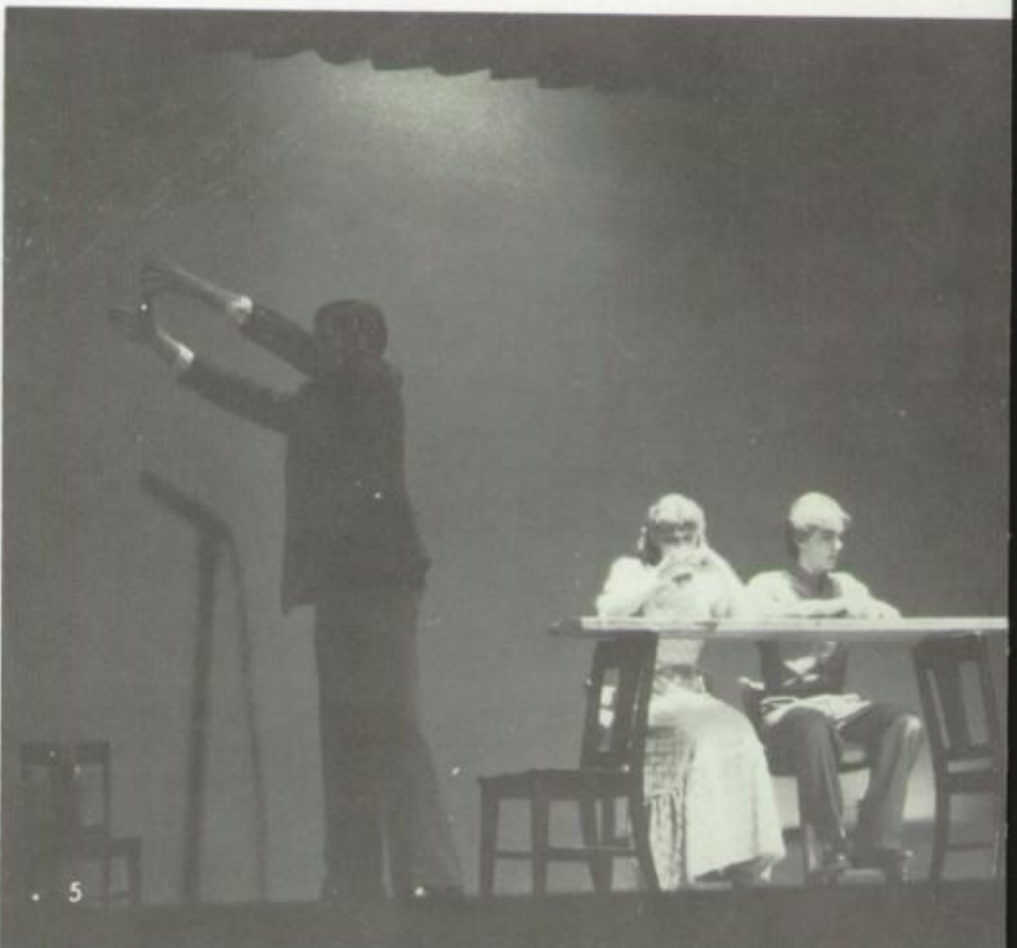

As Christmas neared the spirit was infectious. Trees were trimmed and hallways decorated. Foreign language students dined together, the choir caroled, and students rehearsed for the production of Our Town. Our Beacon editor took a mental vacation to Florida, and we even received an unexpected visit from who else? ... Santa Claus!

1. Students served guests at the Dinner Theater. 2. Food baskets for needy families were collected at Christmas time. 3. Theater Company traveled to elementary schools to put on a Christmas show. 4. Ethnic foods were served at the Foreign Language Department Christmas party. 5. Our Town was performed by drama students in January. 6. Foreign Language students attended the annual Christmas party.

1. Students rehearsed for the production of Our Town. 2. Theater Company members were both waiters and actors at Park's first Dinner Theater presentation of four one-act plays. 3. Students built snow sculptures in Winter Activities class. 4. Students took advantage of one of the winter's few snowfalls. 5. The elementary students were an appreciative audience.

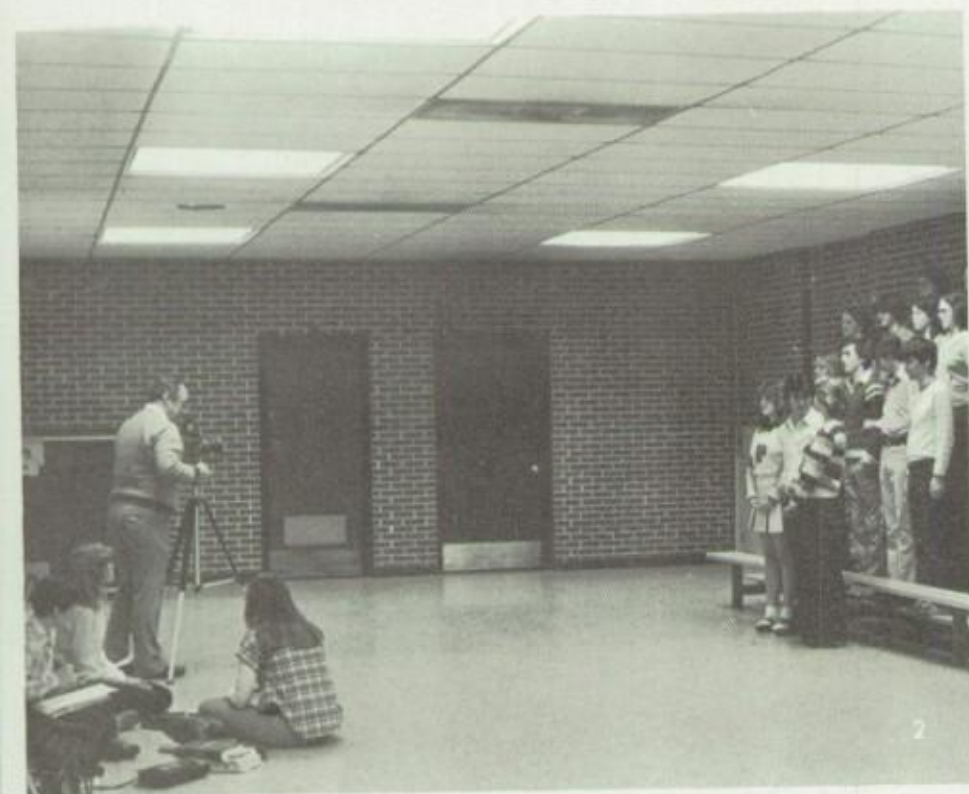

Winter came and finally covered Racine with a soft blanket of white. Though the temperatures were down, school spirit was up! Throughout the month of February many activities took place in honor of Black History. Basketball games, pep assemblies, and dances were among the winter activities that kept us warm.

1. Centerfold provided the music for Girls Formal. 2. Couples danced at Memorial Hall. 3. The staff created a giant get-well card for Mr. Phelan. 4. Students participated in Black History Month activities. 5. Secretary of State Vel Phillips spoke at an all-school assembly.

Our Town

Our Town, by Thornton Wilder, displays many aspects of life and death in New England in the 1900's. It reveals the simplicity and genuineness of these people at that time and place. The play was directed by John Burns and presented in January.

1. Mrs. Webb, (Betty Bush) told the audience it is wrong to go into marriage so young. 2. Walking home from school George Gibbs (Ted Holroyd), ran into Emily (Sharon Lamberty). 3. Mr. Burns, the director of Our Town, looked over a final scene in the play. 4. Prof. Willard, (Joe Lomasney), gave a scientific view of Our Town with the help of the Stage Manager, (Jim Ziolkowski).

1. George asked Mr. Webb (Tim Bowhall) for advice about marriage. 2. Mr. Webb encouraged Emily to go through with the wedding. 3. George and Emily had an important talk in a soda shop while the Stage Manager talked on.

Radke Trip

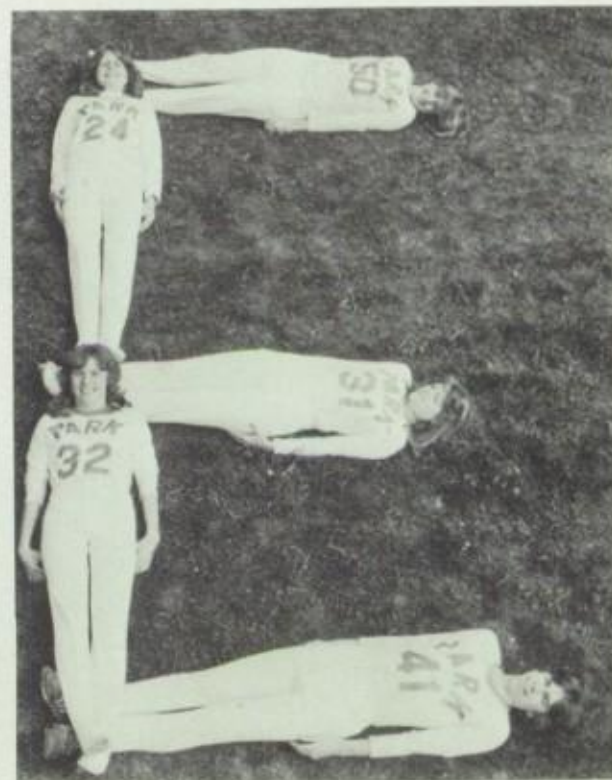

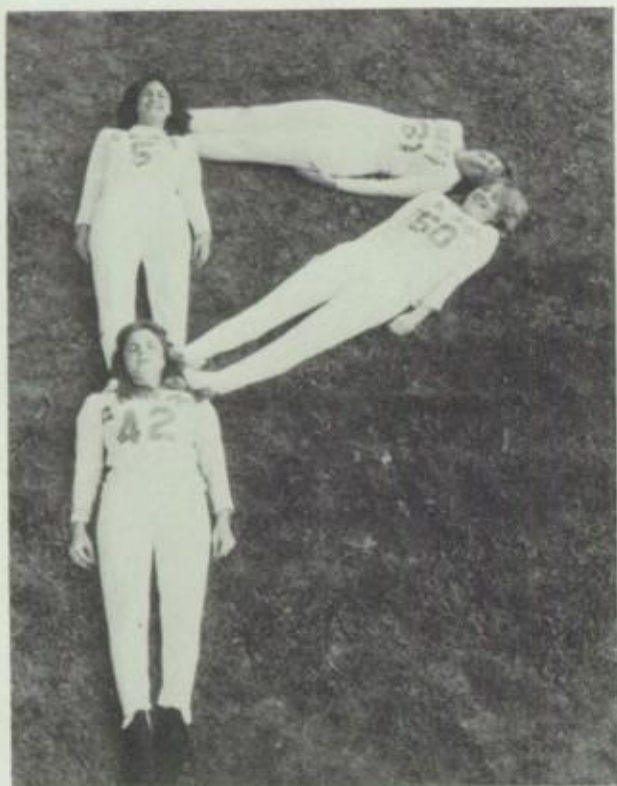

On July 1, 1979, a group of 30 students, a teacher, and a student assistant loaded into a yellow school bus. Their destination: the wide open West. During the next 38 days they crossed over 7,000 miles together. They passed through 11 states and 2 Canadian provinces. They learned to laugh and sing together, and they picked each other up when they fell. They came back experts on the subject of Earth Science, carrying souvenir fossils, and minerals home to show Mom and Dad. They learned how to pitch a tent and cook a gourmet meal on a Coleman stove. They met people from all over the world. But best of all they experienced the beauty of nature first hand. They are a very special group of people, known only as Radke Family #8. As they remembered the trip, Radke Family #9 made plans for their summer adventures.

Each year's yearbook is unique: the product of different planners, different circumstances, different abilities. At the same time, it must be the record of a school year; and that requires a lot of time-consuming, organized, accurate work. As adviser, Judy Davies tries, each year, to find the combination of people able and willing to accomplish both goals.

This year's book has its creative features: Lisa Kroll's artwork in the sports section; the Theater Company volunteers who appeared on the division pages because of a lunch-hour idea put forth by Dave Mogensen and Iram Cruz; and especially the Pelican and Panthers created by Mark Christiansen for the supplement and endsheets.

Many others had a part in making these ideas work, however: drawing layouts; writing instructions; identifying thousands of faces and checking spelling of names; borrowing costumes, carrying ladders, finding people; doing a print "just one more time, a little darker"; doing someone else's work at deadline time. The Kipi staff presented on pages 26 and 27 had plenty to do.

To accomplish all this, a yearbook needs a group of people willing to do a little bit more, in some cases a lot more, than they ever imagined themselves doing when the book began. No one imagined that the newspaper adviser, Jim Runge, would end up on top of a 12-foot ladder photographing those human letters; that Bill Halliday of Charles Studio could make the prints in the color section look so much better than the proofs we thought we had to work with; that Dave Krupp would almost forget to hand in a "Mrs. Huggins-term paper" because he spent a full day photographing Toma's second visit; or that Mike Fennigkoh's willingness to do the staff pages would turn into a few more than that: the color page layouts and the final checking for most of the pages in the entire book. When it became difficult to find photographers to cover various events, Heather Stewart, Rick Sill and even Scott Leslie's father helped out. Heather's picture at the top of this page shows a few of the people this book is for and about . . . and why it's worth the trouble.
